

A photograph of St. Mary's Church in Tarleton, Lancashire. The church is a red brick building with a prominent square tower on the left side. The tower has a belfry with arched openings and is topped with a small dome and a weather vane. The main body of the church has a gabled roof with a skylight and several arched windows. The church is surrounded by a green lawn with several gravestones. The sky is blue with scattered white clouds.

Memories of War

One of the anomalies that exist in many parishes is the fact that there are some omissions in the names inscribed on the war memorials compared with those in the churchyard. This is noticeable when one visits the churchyard and observes the names on the headstones of the graves and memorials of those killed in, or who died later because of their injuries, following both World Wars and who are not listed on the war memorials. The parish would render a great service to the families of those war heroes from the village if there was a common memorial that included all the names of these victims of war. Obviously, many casualties of wars never return home and are buried in other countries or have no known grave, although many of those are at least remembered on war memorials in both the UK and overseas. Others will be buried or remembered elsewhere in the United Kingdom.

I would also like to acknowledge the work of the Commonwealth War Graves Commission, the Imperial War Museum and the National Archives. Much of the information about these wartime heroes has been gleaned from their websites and the documents included in this tribute are their copyright©. THORNTON GARDEN OF REST

(Index No. U.K. 848)

Thornton is in the urban district of Litherland in the Borough of Crosby, about six and a half miles north of Liverpool. This burial ground is in Lydiat Lane and owned by the Crosby, Litherland and Waterloo Joint Burial Board. It was opened in 1940. Ground in Section C, close to the entrance, was set aside for service war graves and there were originally 20 graves here, in a group enclosed by a hedge. After the war, however, the remains of three Italian servicemen were moved by the interested authorities for re-burial in the Italian Plot in Brookwood War Cemetery, Surrey; while the German Cemetery at Cannock Chase is the final resting place of three German servicemen who were also buried here. There are now 14 graves in this group, including those of three ex-servicemen who died after discharge from the forces from causes not due to war service. The rest of the graves are scattered.

The total number of burials in the cemetery is 44, and this figure is made up by 4 sailors, 14 soldiers and 13 airmen belonging to the forces of the United Kingdom; 10 men of the Merchant Navy and 3 ex-servicemen.

This document is incomplete.

This is because I have been unable to visit the graves of those men lost in the Great War - due to time constraints. I hope to be able to visit again in the future. I was also unable to enter the church as it was locked, so have no photographs of the interior.

If you can provide me with further details of this church and the military graves I'd be delighted to hear from you.
