Memories of War

During my research into the various military graves and war memorials in Wrea Green, particularly those in the parish church of St. Nicholas, I have received great assistance from the Verger, Stanley Parkinson, without whose help this project wouldn't have been anywhere near as complete as it now is. I owe him a great debt of gratitude, as does the parish, for all the work he carries out in the churchyard to maintain the graves and grounds in such a wonderful condition - something he has been doing for more than 43 years. His knowledge of the church, the graves and the parish is likely to be unsurpassed.

One of the anomalies that Stanley brought to my attention is the fact that there are some omissions in the names inscribed on the war memorials compared with those in the churchyard. This is noticeable when one visits the churchyard and observes the names on the headstones of the graves and memorials of those killed in, or who died later because of their injuries, following both World Wars and who are not listed on the war memorials. The parish would render a great service to the families of those war heroes from the village if there was a common memorial that included all the names of these victims of war.

I would also like to acknowledge the work of the Commonwealth War Graves Commission, the Imperial War Museum and the National Archives. Much of the information about these wartime heroes has been gleaned from their websites and the documents included in this tribute are their copyright©. I would also like to acknowledge the following websites for providing relevant information:

This document is incomplete.

This is because there is insufficient information to be able to trace the records of some of the personnel named in this document.

If you can advise me of further details, such as their military service number or any other personal information, I would be most grateful.
